MODERN MANAGERS EXCELLENCE

MANAGERS CHALLENGE;

KEEP ALL THE JUGGLING BALLS IN THE AIR

Management is the art of getting things done through people, as Mary Parker Follett wrote in the early twentieth century. It is the act of getting people together to accomplish desired goals and objectives. Frenchman Henri Fayol considers management to consist of seven functions: planning, organizing, leading and directing, coordinating of resources, controlling and monitoring, staffing and motivating.

Management Challenges in the 21st Century look afresh at the future of management thinking and practice. Managers need a broad range of skills in order to contribute to a modern economy and take their place in the technological society of the twenty-first century. The high expectations placed upon the modern manager by the organization, team and individual staff members mean that managers now need an increasingly wide skills set to meet the challenges presented. For many managers, 'keeping all the juggling balls in the air' can be daunting.

Notting Hill College – School of Business offers a Post Graduate Diploma in Management that suits every learner's lifestyle and provides an opportunity for existing and future managers to perfectly face management challenges in the 21st Century.
